

Andrew Deutscher
Facilitator

Andrew Deutscher is a Senior Facilitator at The Energy Project, a company that helps individuals and organizations fuel energy, engagement, focus and productivity by harnessing the science of high performance.

Prior to joining The Energy Project in 2009, Andrew spent ten years at Sony Pictures Television, the last five as a senior corporate executive responsible for sales and distribution of major television programs including “King of Queens” and “Just Shoot Me.” He was also responsible for developing strategies, sales goals and marketing plans for shows ranging from “Dr. OZ” to “Seinfeld.”

Prior to Sony, Andrew worked in local broadcast television for a Warner Bros. affiliate while doing commercial acting in Phoenix. A sought after speaker and moderator for many industry events including the New York State Broadcasters Association and NAB, Andrew also has delivered keynotes for leaders in organizations such as Marriott International, Price Waterhouse Coopers, Franklin Healthcare and many others.